Disclaimer: This report is an independent monitoring initiative by PAFFREL and the March 12 Movement; its findings are based on publicly available data and do not represent the official positions or political stances of individuals, organizations, or the movement.

Preface

This report presents the initial findings from the independent monitoring of the national development manifesto, 'A Thriving Nation, A Beautiful Life', of the Government of Sri Lanka. Endorsed by citizens through the Presidential Election (September 2024) and the Parliamentary Election (November 2024), the manifesto has been formally recognized as the national development policy for the next five years following Cabinet approval. The Cabinet has further demonstrated its commitment by pledging to closely oversee its implementation, signalling strong political will and institutional ownership.

In keeping with its longstanding mission to advance democratic accountability, PAFFREL and March 12 Movement (M12M) has initiated this third-party monitoring process. This effort is not intended to fault-find but to provide a constructive, evidence-based assessment of the outputs, outcomes, and impacts of implementation.

The National People's Power (NPP) Government's manifesto underscores the importance of independent monitoring in ensuring transparency, accountability, and alignment with national development goals. Monitoring is not merely a means of tracking progress; it is an opportunity to deepen understanding of how the manifesto contributes to effective governance, sustainable development, and citizen well-being.

This report represents the first phase of a two-stage monitoring effort:

- Phase –I: Assessment of relevance through a review of cabinet decisions, national budget 2025, executive decisions, and parliamentary actions for the identification of best practices for citizen-focused implementation.
- Phase–II: Continuation of Phase-I and monitoring of ministerial performances in line with national budget 2025 with manifesto commitments, particularly its efficiency in resource allocation and contribution to development effectiveness.

Through this work, PAFFREL and M12M seek to foster transparency, institutional learning, and a culture of accountability in governance ensuring that the aspirations embodied in the manifesto translate into tangible benefits for the people of Sri Lanka.

Executive Summary

PAFFREL, together with the March 12 Movement (M12M), has advanced independent monitoring of election manifestos to foster a clean political culture and greater accountability. Since 2019, the initiative has reviewed election manifestos and, since 2022, engaged parties, civil society, and experts to establish a framework for credible, people-centered manifestos, promoted ahead of the Presidential Election 2024 through media and public dialogue.

In the lead-up to the 2024 Presidential and Parliamentary Elections, PAFFREL expressed its interest in promoting accountability and transparency by assessing the alignment of political party manifestos with the expectations of voters and citizens. Following the elections, PAFFREL, in collaboration with M12M, initiated a monitoring process to assess whether the elected government is adhering to the commitments outlined in its manifesto.

As a collective of responsible Civil Society Organizations, we commend the government's decision to adopt its election manifesto as the national development policy framework. We also recognize the steps taken by the government to establish its own monitoring and evaluation mechanisms to track the progress of implementation.

In parallel, PAFFREL and the M12M have carried out an independent third-party monitoring initiative. The purpose of this exercise is provide constructive support in ensuring that the government remains aligned with its manifesto commitments. This monitoring process is framed as a positive contribution toward strengthening transparency, accountability, and democratic governance.

Our monitoring framework is guided by a set of principles, assumptions, hypotheses, and criteria designed to assess government actions against manifesto commitments. In the initial phase, we analysed cabinet decisions, proposals of the National Budget 2025, and key decisions of the Executive President, and parliamentary actions. This report presents an overview of the government's performance during the first six months of its term, assessed against the commitments made in its election manifesto.

In addition to this, we plan to engage with the parliament, ministries, and public institutions to monitor its ongoing activities and policy implementations in the next phase.

PAFFREL and M12M are committed to continuing this monitoring effort to ensure sustained public accountability and to foster a culture of transparency and results-driven governance.

1. Introduction

Election manifestos are more than campaign documents; they are social contracts between political parties or alliances and the people, outlining the vision, priorities, and actions a government commits to pursue if elected. Systematic monitoring of manifesto delivery strengthens transparency, accountability, and trust, allowing citizens and stakeholders to assess whether the government is achieving its stated goals.

1.1. Global Context: Manifesto Monitoring and Evaluation

Worldwide, social policy reform increasingly emphasizes sound advice, evidence-based formulation, and efficient budget allocation. Yet a recurring challenge remains: translating these commitments into measurable development outcomes. Many governments continue to face difficulties in bridging the gap between ambitious policy frameworks and tangible, lasting results.

Monitoring and evaluating election manifestos is not a process that is directly carried out by governments. Instead, it is led by independent institutions, civil society organizations, research institutes, and media. In some countries, there are more established practices of scrutinizing, monitoring, and evaluating the manifestos and policy statements of political parties, especially during elections.

Independent organizations in the United Kingdom such as the Institute for Fiscal Studies (IFS)¹ and the Institute for Government (IfG)² regularly analyse party manifestos, especially during general elections. They evaluate the financial feasibility, policy consistency, and implementation capacity of promises made by parties. Media outlets like BBC's Reality Check also scrutinize manifesto pledges for accuracy and practicality. All these efforts expect to enhance voter awareness, expose unrealistic promises, and pressures parties to justify commitments.

In South Africa, organizations like the Institute for Security Studies (ISS)³ and South African Institute of Race Relations⁴ analyse manifestos of major parties. Their focus is often on policy coherence, economic sustainability, and democratic accountability. Thus, this effort encourages debate on policy feasibility and highlights gaps in implementation.

While United States elections don't have formal "manifestos," party platforms and candidate promises are tracked by organizations like FactCheck.org⁵, PolitiFact⁶, and the Washington Post Fact Checker⁷. These bodies scrutinize campaign pledges and track whether elected officials deliver on them once in office like PolitiFact's Promise Tracker. This effort provides continuous monitoring, holds leaders accountable, and helps voters verify claims.

In the Philippines, civil society and academic institutions collaborate to evaluate presidential and local government platforms. For instance, organizations like Philippine Centre for Investigative Journalism (PCIJ)⁸ examine feasibility and follow-up on actual delivery of manifesto promises. This strengthens public oversight, highlights unfulfilled pledges, and promotes government responsiveness.

In South Korea, the National Election Commission⁹, media, and watchdog Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs) monitor election manifestos. Thus, political parties are legally required to submit policy platforms. Public databases track promises and compare implementation.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (CBC)¹⁰, think tanks like the Fraser Institute, and independent NGOs do pre and post-election analysis of key pledges. Canada's parliamentary mechanisms allow tracking of government implementation while Germany has systematic content analysis of manifestos through MARPOR (Manifesto Project)¹¹, think tanks, and universities. In Germany, the public and academic scrutiny is very high and political parties are expected to stay ideologically consistent based on their platforms. Government-funded bodies, universities, and research organizations in Sweden monitor manifestos.

In addition, the European Parliamentary Research Service (EPRS)¹² tracks commitments made during elections and how they are translated into EU policies. Civil society networks also monitor promises related to climate policy, governance reforms, and social protections. The International IDEA¹³ and the International Foundation for Electoral Systems (IFES)¹⁴ often assist local activists in monitoring the promises and performance of transitional democracies and they expect high levels of transparency and public access. Also, manifestos are used in coalition negotiations and parliamentary tracking.

Around the world, structured manifesto tracking is a recognised governance tool. In the United Kingdom, the Institute for Government analyses progress on each pledge using transparent categories like 'achieved', 'in progress' and 'not started'. In the Philippines, civil society tracks the president's annual "State of the Nation" address against campaign promises, publishing public scorecards. In South Africa, the Parliamentary Monitoring Group assesses legislative and policy outcomes against manifestos, providing accessible, non-partisan updates.

1.2. South Asian Context: Manifesto Monitoring and Evaluation

South Asia offers equally relevant examples. Election Watch by Civil Society in India has the Association for Democratic Reforms (ADR)¹⁵ that monitors manifestos during state and national elections. They assess promises against governance priorities, transparency, and accountability and issue periodic "Report Cards" based on official data and citizen surveys. ADR also tracks the fulfilment of key pledges and publishes public reports for citizen awareness. Thus, they promote transparency, empowers citizens with evidence-based reports, and strengthens accountability. Moreover, the Election Commission of India (ECI) mandates adherence to a Model Code of Conduct for manifestos. Nepal's watchdog groups monitor promises related to federal governance and social inclusion, while in Pakistan, think tanks track delivery in areas like economic reform and social welfare. These cases show that systematic, evidence-based tracking strengthens trust in governance and reduces the gap between political rhetoric and reality.

As a unique case, In Bhutan, political manifestos are strictly regulated and monitored by the Election Commission of Bhutan (ECB) to ensure fairness and accountability in the electoral process. Political parties are required to submit their manifestos by a set deadline, after which an Independent Evaluation Committee (IEC), composed of experts from relevant fields, reviews the pledges for realism, feasibility, and alignment with national interests. This scrutiny prevents parties from making populist or financially unsustainable promises, as they must also disclose how major fiscal pledges will be financed. Once the review process is complete, the ECB formally approves the manifestos, and no further changes or additional promises are allowed during campaigns, creating a level playing field among parties.

1.3. Sri Lankan Context: Manifesto Monitoring and Evaluation

For Sri Lanka, adopting such practices is both timely and necessary. While ambitious manifesto pledges have been made in past elections, consistent and transparent follow-up has been limited, weakening public trust. Public expectations for effective governance and accountability are rising.

Over the past decades, significant investments have targeted poverty reduction, equality, and quality-of-life improvements. Despite periods of growth, translating economic gains into sustained poverty reduction has been inconsistent. This underscores the urgency of strengthening planning, monitoring, and evaluation systems to ensure a shift from output-focused to results- and impact-oriented governance.

1.4. Election manifestos by the political parties in Sri Lanka: The Post-Colonial scenario

Political party manifestos in Sri Lanka have evolved significantly over the decades, reflecting the shifting priorities of the populace from independence and socialism to ethnic rights, economic reform, and governance. The Lanka Sama Samaja Party (LSSP) became the first to issue a political manifesto. Its early platform called for complete national independence, nationalization of production and distribution, and equality.

In the 1950s to 1970s, ethnic demands and federalist aspirations were reflected in the Tamil United Liberation Front (TULF)'s general election manifesto in 1977.

In the first half of the 1960s, Sirimavo Bandaranaike's Sri Lanka Freedom Party (SLFP) presented a manifesto emphasizing continuity of late S.W.R.D. Bandaranaike's vision, with specific commitments on nationalization and state control, language and identity, non-alignment in foreign policy, and socio-economic redistribution and development planning.

Sirimavo Bandaranaike's 1970 election manifesto closely aligned with her Ten-Year Plan (1970–1980), providing a political blueprint for its implementation. The manifesto's commitments to nationalization, land reform, state-guided industrial development, and administrative reforms supported the plan's goals of economic self-sufficiency, social equity, and decentralized governance. Constitutional reforms and a non-aligned foreign policy further reflected the Ten-Year Plan's emphasis on national sovereignty and independent development, linking electoral promises directly to long-term strategic planning.

J. R. Jayawardhane under the early phase of United National Party (UNP) presented their manifesto with the expectation of establishment of an Executive Presidency, introducing economic liberalization (open economic policies including modernization and promoting and strengthening private sector), introducing constitutional reforms, and addressing national unity and security.

Meanwhile, left-wing groups like the Socialist Equality Party (SEP) and Janatha Vimukthi Peramuna (JVP) published manifestos focusing on class struggle, anti-communalism, and opposing austerity measures. JVP promoted “new socialism” while seeking to reassure the business community of its pro-growth stance.

People’s Alliance (PA)’s manifesto was focused on restoring democracy, rule of governance, and human rights, establishing a clean and accountable government, with a reduced cabinet, promoting peace through dialogue with Tamil political representatives, and introducing policies for economic justice, focusing on rural development and poverty alleviation.

The ‘Regaining Sri Lanka’ strategy was a key development policy framework introduced in 2002 under Prime Minister Ranil Wickremesinghe’s United National Front (UNF) government. It was closely linked with the peace process and economic reforms. This framework focused on peace and stability, economic liberalization, good governance, poverty reduction, infrastructure development, and foreign investment and trade.

In 2005, The ‘Mahinda Chinthana’ manifesto was focused on protecting sovereignty and territorial integrity (ending separatism), preserving Sri Lankan identity, culture, and values, rural-centric development – “Gama Neguma” (village upliftment), expanding infrastructure (roads, electricity, irrigation), and social welfare – subsidies, Samurdhi strengthening. In 2010, ‘Mahinda Chinthana Idiri Dekma (Vision for the Future)’ focused on post-war reconstruction (North and East), mega infrastructure projects – ports, airports, highways, power plants, National unity through reconciliation and development, positioning Sri Lanka as an economic hub in Asia, expanding higher education and technology.

In the Presidential Election 2010, Sarath Fonseka, the ‘Common Candidate’ who backed by a coalition comprised by UNP, JVP, and TNA (Tamil National Alliance) was launched his election manifesto, ‘Vishvasaniya Venasak’ (Believable Change). This manifesto highlighted 10-point plan which included restore democracy and secure lasting peace, eliminate fraud and corruption, help families become financially secure, reduce the cost of living, initiate national reconciliation, improve health services, revive and improve education, empower women, create jobs for the youth, build a fair and disciplined society and ensure national security.

In the Presidential Election 2015, Maithripala Sirisena launched ‘A Compassionate Governance – A Stable Country’. The manifesto presented a vision for a democratic, transparent, and inclusive Sri Lanka, with a central focus on a 100-day reform program designed to curb the excessive powers of the executive presidency and strengthen democratic institutions.

In the Presidential Election 2019, the main candidates were presented their manifestos. Gotabaya Rajapaksa’s ‘The Ten Principles of Inclusive Governance’ manifesto mainly focused on national security and sovereignty, economic reforms, governance and anti-corruption measures, education and human resource development, social welfare and public service, infrastructure and development, and environmental management while Sajith Premadasa’s ‘There Is No Limit to What Sri Lanka Can Achieve’ under the New Democratic Front (NDF) mainly focused on housing and infrastructure, economic development, education and employment, national security, and governance and anti-corruption.

In the Parliamentary Election 2020, Gotabaya Rajapaksa’s ‘Vistas of Prosperity and Splendour (Saubhagayaya Dekma)’ launched by Sri Lanka Podujana Peramuna (SLPP) laid out his vision for governance, development, and security. It was positioned as a comprehensive national policy framework for 2020-2025 and focused on national security first, strong and efficient government, economic revival, infrastructure and urban development, agriculture and rural economy, technology and innovation, environmental protection, social welfare and equality, and national identity and culture.

The UNP's election manifesto in 2020 focused a few salient issues as a solution to reviving the economy that is affected by the Covid-19 pandemic at both national and global levels. Their foremost concern is to ensure the country is not hit by a second wave of pandemic.¹⁶ The manifesto highly concerned on enterprise support schemas, new investment zones, and international funding.

Anura Kumara Disanayake's JVP/NPP manifesto in the Presidential Election 2019 and the Parliamentary Election 2020, 'Deshaye Apekshawaya' (The Expectation of the Nation) focused on abolition of the Executive Presidency, cabinet downsizing and ministerial reforms, electoral and political reforms, rule of law and anti-corruption measures, non-aligned foreign policy, and support for fundamental rights applications. This policy framework continued to the Presidential and Parliamentary Elections 2024.

The National People's Power (NPP) as a political alliance launched its vision as 'Pohosath Ratak-Lassana Jivithayak' (A Thriving Nation-A Beautiful Life) and came to office on the transformative the manifesto sets a comprehensive development agenda with a strong focus on delivery and accountability. Currently, the Government, through the Presidential Secretariat's March 2025 circular¹⁷, has instituted an internal system to monitor implementation of its manifesto.

1.5. Monitoring and Evaluation System in the public sector of Sri Lanka

Sri Lanka's monitoring and evaluation framework operates through a structured institutional setup led by the National Development Action Committee (NDAC), the highest authority chaired by the Prime Minister, which reviews cross-ministerial implementation and resolves policy issues. Supporting it, the National Planning Council (NPC), through its M&E Division, acts as the central monitoring body and secretariat, overseeing national and donor-funded projects. At the ministerial level, Ministerial Development Action Committees (MDACs), chaired by sectoral ministers, review program progress and escalate unresolved matters to the NDAC, while dedicated M&E units within ministries track project performance and report to both MDACs and the NPC. At the regional level, offices and directorates monitor programs locally and submit findings to central authorities, ensuring a coordinated flow of information and accountability across all levels.

The National Monitoring and Evaluation (M&E) Systems in Sri Lanka are designed for administrative oversight within government planning and execution. In the institutional framework, the National Development Action Committee (NDAC) is the highest-level M&E body in Sri Lanka. The National Planning Council (NPC) M&E Division advises on development planning and also serves as the central monitoring authority. Committees under the Ministerial Development Action Committees (MDACs) chaired by sectoral ministers, include representatives from finance, administration, and other relevant departments. Each ministry typically contains a designated M&E division or planning unit responsible for monitoring the ministry's projects and reporting to both their MDAC and the NPC's M&E division. Regional offices and directorates monitor and evaluate programs at their level and report upwards to both the central ministries and NPC.

In Sri Lanka, the adoption of Management for Development Results (MfDR)¹⁸ marks a significant change in monitoring and evaluation, emphasizing a continuous management cycle, setting direction, planning, implementation, and reviewing results. The review stage feeds back into the process, enabling ongoing learning and improvement in future planning and execution. “The MfDR approach adopted in Sri Lanka is more of a “whole-of government” approach, covering national, sectoral, and institutional and project level. A results focus is being built into the national development strategy, sectoral plans, ministries and projects”.

One of the noteworthy and significant aspects is that a home-grown, user-friendly, national, web-based electronic on-line Project Monitoring System (ePMS)¹⁹ has been established in the Department of Foreign Aid and Budget Monitoring of the Ministry of the Ministry of Plan Implementation, to track the implementation progress (financial/physical), and the results of all development projects and programmes.²⁰ This system was planned to enable real-time tracking of development projects using logical frameworks, early warning signals, donor and sector filters, and citizen feedback, while the MfDR approach embeds results-oriented planning and accountability within ministries. Supporting these efforts, the National Operations Room (NOR) integrates data across ministries through MfDR-style dashboards to aid evidence-based decision-making. However, the ePMS is no longer operational/implemented in Sri Lanka.

1.6. Legal Framework

There are no direct legal frameworks in Sri Lanka to conduct manifesto monitoring, but the following policy, bill and policy framework supports the monitoring and evaluation process:

1. The National Evaluation Policy, enacted in 2018 by the Cabinet of ministers:

The National Evaluation Policy (NEP)²¹, adopted by the Cabinet of Ministers in 2018, was introduced to institutionalize evaluation across all levels of government and strengthen evidence-based governance. The policy seeks to enhance transparency, accountability, and the effective use of resources by ensuring systematic evaluation of government programs and projects.

2. The National Evaluation Bill, drafted by a Parliamentary Select Committee in 2019

In 2019, a Parliamentary Select Committee to study and report to Parliament its recommendation to ensure National Evaluation Capacity in Sri Lanka. It drafted the National Evaluation Bill²² with the objective of strengthening national evaluation capacity. The Bill sought to provide a legal framework for systematic, evidence-based evaluation across all tiers of government. Its focus was on ensuring that public policies and programs are regularly reviewed for effectiveness, efficiency, and accountability. The initiative marked a significant step towards embedding evaluation practices in Sri Lanka's governance framework through legislative means.

3. Dissemination of the legal framework of the National Evaluation Policy by the Department of Project Management & Monitoring (DPMM) in 2023

In 2023, the Department of Project Management and Monitoring (DPMM), under the Ministry of Finance, took significant steps to promote and implement the NEP across Sri Lanka's public sector. The DPMM facilitated the dissemination of the NEP Implementation Framework²³, which outlines strategies and technical guidelines essential for institutionalizing evaluation practices within government institutions. This framework aims to enhance planning, implementation, and monitoring processes to ensure the effectiveness and sustainability of development initiatives.

1.7. Manifesto Monitoring by the CSOs in Sri Lanka

Sri Lanka is committed to enhancing the effectiveness of development cooperation through alignment with international frameworks. Under the Paris Declaration (2005), the country emphasizes ownership, alignment, harmonization, managing for results, and mutual accountability. Following the Accra Agenda for Action (2008), Sri Lanka strengthened national institutions, promoted transparent and predictable aid, and encouraged civil society participation. Through the Busan Partnership (2011), the country advances inclusive partnerships, results-based approaches, and multi-stakeholder engagement, ensuring that development assistance aligns with national priorities and contributes effectively to sustainable socio-economic development.

Along the lines of the recent Busan Declaration, CSOs can and should play a central role in advocating for transparency in the allocation and expenditure of public budgets; accountability for the implementation of public policies; strengthening the demand and use of evaluation to inform evidence-based policy-making; and, strengthening capacities of qualified evaluators to produce credible and useful evaluations based on national and international evaluation standards.²⁴

In this context, CSOs and research institutions in Sri Lanka, play a vital role in tracking and monitoring election manifestos, thereby strengthening accountability, promoting citizen participation, and ensuring that political commitments translate into meaningful development outcomes.

Verité Research was running a tracking system on the promises of 'Yahapalanaya' Manthri.lk, the General Election Manifesto Tracker. This tracker assessed the progress of about 80 actionable promises from the 2015 United National Front for Good Governance (UNFGG) and United People's Freedom Alliance (UPFA) parliamentary manifestos in 2015. According to Verité Research "the tracker classifies each promise under a thematic area and has scored it in terms of its current stage of progress. Four stages titled 'No Action', 'Poor Progress', 'On Track' and 'Complete' allow users a simple guide on overall performance while detailed information on the progress of individual promises is also available. These actionable promises have been tracked by Manthri.lk by using official sources available in the public domain”.²⁵

Recently, Verité Research, through the Anura Meter, provides a quantitative, evidence-based tracker of 22 major promises from the government's manifesto, offering the public a transparent and accessible progress report. The Centre for Policy Alternatives (CPA) contributes a more qualitative approach, producing thematic analyses and briefs on governance, reconciliation, and accountability issues linked to manifesto promises. (<https://www.cpalanka.org/manifesto-tracker/>). Transparency International Sri Lanka (TISL) focuses specifically on anti-corruption and governance reforms, monitoring progress on the IMF Governance Action Plan (<https://www.tisrilanka.org/government-action-plan-tracker/>) and the establishment of National Anti-Corruption Action Plan (2025–2029) Steering Committee (<https://www.tisrilanka.org/tisl-appointed-to-national-anti-corruption-action-plan-steering-committee/>).

1.8. Independent Monitoring and Role of PAFFREL and M12M

PAFFREL and M12M have undertaken multiple initiatives to foster a clean political culture and promote a political system that remains accountable to the people. As part of this effort, PAFFREL has engaged in the independent monitoring of election manifestos issued during national elections in Sri Lanka. This initiative seeks to ensure that manifestos go beyond being mere documents or promises, transforming them into actionable programs that empower citizens and contribute to the country's overall development. Through this process, PAFFREL has encouraged candidates, political parties, and alliances to embrace greater democratic responsibility and accountability.

The March 12 Movement attempted to review the government's progress in fulfilling its election manifesto commitments in 2019. As part of this initiative, the movement made all manifestos accessible to the public, presented by political parties.

Since 2022, PAFFREL has actively engaged in dialogue with representatives of political parties and groups on this matter. To further strengthen and streamline the process, PAFFREL established an advisory board of scholars and initiated extensive consultations with civil society organizations, trade unions, the Election Commission of Sri Lanka, academics, professionals, women and youth groups, and other sectors of society. As a result, measures were initiated to develop a foundational framework outlining the key elements that should be included in election manifestos, based on the points such as foundation of making election manifestos, matters to be considered in making election manifestos, content and structure of election manifestos, releasing election manifestos towards people, implementation of manifestos and its monitoring and evaluation.

PAFFREL actively engaged with the leadership of political parties to secure their attention and agreement on this foundational framework, with a focus on the Presidential Election 2024. Discussions were held with the United National Front, Samagi Jana Balawegaya, and National People's Power (Jathika Jana Balawegaya), along with their representatives, to obtain consensus on the proposed framework and its core principles. The initiative was further promoted through mass media and social media, highlighting ways to formulate electoral policies that are practical and responsive to citizens' needs. Notably, PAFFREL facilitated a special discussion program on the principles of governance and economic policies included in the election manifestos of the Presidential Election 2024 candidates, in collaboration with the Independent Television Network (ITN).

Following the initial agreement reached with the National People's Power (NPP) on measures to ensure that election manifestos are accountable, practical, and realistic, PAFFREL and March 12 Movement engaged with representatives of the NPP and the Janatha Vimukthi Peramuna (JVP) to discuss the monitoring and evaluation of election manifestos. This engagement, conducted after the NPP assumed office as the new government, included a basic introduction to the principles and processes of monitoring and evaluation.

Independent monitoring is essential to determine whether government actions align with stated objectives and to identify factors enabling or hindering implementation. It also generates lessons to inform future planning and budgeting. PAFFREL, with a longstanding record of promoting transparency and democratic accountability, leads this third-party monitoring initiative.

1.9. Objectives and Scope

This monitoring phase seeks:

- To track and analyse government actions as reflected in the manifesto.
- To encourage citizen engagement in holding the government accountable.
- To report as third party stakeholders for efficient and effective implementation by the government.
- To lay the groundwork from manifesto monitoring to monitoring and evaluation.

1.10. Key Monitoring Questions

- Are the manifesto commitments adequately reflected in government actions?
- Are resources being allocated and utilized efficiently to achieve promised results?
- What are the measurable outputs, outcomes, and impacts of key manifesto programs?

1.11. Areas addressed through key questions

- Track policy timelines: Compare the timing of key manifesto-related policy announcements with political, economic, social development and governance.
- Institutional capacity: Whether ministries/agencies have the systems to implement commitments.
- Fiscal space: Assess budget allocations, funding gaps, and revenue constraints.
- Political will: Look for leadership prioritisation, public statements, or political risks linked to certain commitments.
- Legal and policy framework: Determine if enabling legislation or regulatory changes are in place.
- Inter-ministerial coordination: Identify whether commitments require cross-sector collaboration and whether such mechanisms exist.

1.12. Purpose of the First Bi-Annual Report

This biannual report presents an evidence-based summary of Phase-I of the manifesto monitoring conducted by PAFFREL and M12M. This report is primarily based on a desk review of official documents, including Cabinet Decisions, the National Budget 2025 and Media releases by the President's Media Division, Government Information centre. The Phase-I focuses on analysing government actions and their alignment with manifesto commitments. The Phase-II will extend this by monitoring effective implementation of the manifesto promises. Additionally, media reports and other secondary sources are observed to provide a broader context and enhance transparency. This offers a baseline for assessing early progress, identifies trends in policy alignment, and sets the foundation for Phase-II.

2. Monitoring Process

Monitoring is an ongoing process from the beginning to end of a development intervention. Any development intervention needs monitoring to stay focused on results. Monitoring can benefit any activity, project, program, strategy, Policy, topic, theme, sector or organization. Both implementation of the activities and realization of the results need to be monitored. There are two stages of monitoring as follows:

- A. Implementation Monitoring - Whether promises are implemented
- B. Results-based Monitoring - Monitoring the achievement of Results (Performance Monitoring at Ministries and institutions)

This monitoring process mainly focuses on monitoring of the implementation of government's manifesto, but not deeply involves to evaluate the results. However, there is no hard line between monitoring and evaluation. Monitoring asks whether the things planned are being done right. Evaluation asks deeper questions such as why and how?

2.1. Purpose and Scope

Since this government manifesto is acknowledged as a 'National Policy Framework', its implementation through Executive actions by the President of the country, Cabinet Decisions by the Cabinet of Ministers, Parliamentary Actions, Budget proposals with Allocation of funds, Ministerial Performances and Activities of relevant authorities are monitored.

This report presents the findings from Phase-I of the independent monitoring of the Government of Sri Lanka's national development manifesto, 'A Thriving Nation, A Beautiful Life'. Its primary purpose is to assess the degree to which Cabinet decisions made between November 2024 and May 2025 reflect the policy priorities and commitments outlined in the manifesto.

The scope of this phase focuses on the alignment of manifesto commitments with cabinet decision making, establishing a baseline for ongoing monitoring. Specifically, it examines emerging trends in implementation, the factors influencing government actions, and the extent to which decisions embody the five guiding principles of manifesto execution.

2.2. Guiding Principles and Criteria

This monitoring process outlined following guiding principles and criteria by Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development-Development Assistance Committee (OECD-DAC):

1. Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness (2005)²⁶
2. ACCRA – Agenda for Action (2008, Accra, Ghana)²⁷
3. Busan Partnership for Effective Development Cooperation (2011)²⁸
4. OECD-DAC Evaluation Criteria²⁹

²⁶ https://www.oecd.org/content/dam/oecd/en/publications/reports/2005/03/paris-declaration-on-aid-effectiveness_g1g12949/9789264098084-en.pdf

²⁷ https://www.oecd.org/content/dam/oecd/en/publications/reports/2008/09/accra-agenda-for-action_g1g1294b/9789264098107-en.pdf

²⁹ <https://www.oecd.org/en/topics/sub-issues/development-co-operation-evaluation-and-effectiveness/evaluation-criteria.html>

The Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness (2005) established five core principles: Ownership, Alignment, Harmonisation, Managing for Results, and Mutual Accountability aimed at improving the quality of aid. Building on this, the Accra Agenda for Action (2008) reaffirmed these commitments while placing greater emphasis on inclusive partnerships and capacity development. The Busan Partnership for Effective Development Cooperation (2011) further expanded the agenda by recognising the role of emerging donors, civil society, and the private sector, while promoting transparency, accountability, and development results. Complementing these global commitments, the OECD-DAC evaluation criteria; Relevance, Effectiveness, Efficiency, Impact, Sustainability, and Coherence provide the internationally accepted framework for assessing development programmes and ensuring that aid contributes meaningfully to long-term national priorities.

2.3. Sri Lanka's Commitment and Adoption

1. Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness

Sri Lanka endorsed the Paris Declaration, committing to its five principles: ownership, alignment, harmonisation, managing for results, and mutual accountability. Successive governments integrated these principles into national development strategies such as the Mahinda Chinthana and later national policy frameworks, emphasizing alignment of donor support with country-led priorities. Since Sri Lanka is a signatory of the Paris Declaration is committed to taking forward the aid effectiveness agenda. However, it is necessary to localise the Paris declaration for it to become an effective tool for aid management and delivery³⁰.

2. Accra Agenda for Action

Building on the Paris commitments, Sri Lanka recognized the need for stronger country ownership and inclusive partnerships ensuring aid modalities supported national systems and sectoral strategies. Following the Accra Agenda for Action, Sri Lanka reinforced its commitment to accelerating reforms in aid management, enhancing country ownership, and strengthening the capacity of national institutions. The country prioritizes predictable, transparent, and results-oriented development cooperation, emphasizing the participation of civil society and local actors in the development process.

3. Busan Partnership for Effective Development Cooperation

Sri Lanka reaffirmed its commitment by aligning development cooperation with the Busan principles of inclusive development partnerships, transparency, accountability, and focus on development results. Engagement with South-South cooperation and triangular partnerships became more visible, reflecting Busan's call for broader stakeholder participation beyond traditional donors. The Busan Partnership reinforced Sri Lanka's long-standing position that development cooperation should be nationally owned and led. It validated Sri Lanka's approach of demanding donor alignment with government priorities, strengthening national systems (like ePMS), and ensuring that aid is accountable to domestic stakeholders first.

4. OECD-DAC Evaluation Criteria

Sri Lanka has adopted the OECD-DAC evaluation framework (relevance, effectiveness, sustainability, and coherence) as the guiding standard for assessing development interventions. These criteria are applied in project evaluations, national monitoring frameworks, and donor-assisted programme assessments, ensuring comparability with international practices.

In applying the OECD-DAC evaluation criteria, Sri Lanka has placed strong emphasis on ensuring that donor-funded interventions align with national priorities and contribute to long-term development goals. Relevance was assessed by examining whether projects supported key areas such as rural development and post-conflict reconstruction in the North and East. Effectiveness was measured through evaluations of programme outcomes, for instance, the success of resettlement initiatives for internally displaced persons. Efficiency focused on the cost-effectiveness of large-scale infrastructure investments, including road networks and irrigation schemes. The impact of donor assistance was monitored through its contribution to poverty reduction and employment generation, particularly within livelihood programmes. To ensure sustainability, projects increasingly integrated capacity-building components in sectors such as health and education, strengthening institutional resilience beyond external funding. With the introduction of coherence as a new criterion, Sri Lanka has also given attention to aligning donor-supported projects with its broader commitments under the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), thereby reinforcing both national ownership and global accountability. The OECD-DAC evaluation criteria can be directly adapted to manifesto monitoring, especially for PAFFREL and the M12M, since both initiatives look at accountability, performance, and impact of promises made by political parties and candidates. This can be framed as follows:

1. Relevance

- Assess whether manifesto promises address the real priorities of citizens.
- Assess the alignment of promises with national needs and people's expectations.

2. Efficiency

- Evaluate how resources (budget allocations, time, and institutional capacity) were used in fulfilling promises.
- Highlight if delivery was cost-effective or if there was waste, duplication, or delay.

3. Effectiveness

- Measure the extent to which promises have been implemented as intended.
- Identify the gap between stated goals and achieved outcomes.

4. Impact

- Assess the broader societal effects of manifesto implementation, such as improvements in livelihoods, citizen trust in governance, reduction in inequality, or strengthening of democracy.
- Look at whether promises produced long-term positive changes.

5. Sustainability

- Examine whether the outcomes of implemented promises can be maintained beyond a single government's term.
- Check if initiatives are backed by strong institutions, laws, and policies rather than being one-off populist measures.

6. Coherence

- Evaluate whether manifesto promises are consistent with each other and with broader national and international commitments, such as the SDGs, human rights conventions, and democratic reforms.

2.4. Country Ownership

Ownership refers to the extent to which the government leads and takes responsibility for the monitoring and evaluation of its own policies through development interventions. Key actions by the current government of Sri Lanka demonstrating ownership of its manifesto include:

- Manifesto as National Policy Framework: The Cabinet, on 03-03-2025, accepted the manifesto 'Thriving Nation – A Beautiful Life' as the National Policy Framework, directing ministries, departments, state institutions, provincial councils, and local authorities to plan and implement their functions accordingly.
- Performance Monitoring Circular: The Presidential Secretariat issued Circular No. PS/SB/Circular/03/2025 on 24-03-2025, instructing all ministries to prepare their Action Plans for 2025 based on the Progress Monitoring Framework and the Strategic Plan 2025–2029.

- Mandatory Reporting: All ministries are required to submit their Action Plans and Strategic Plans incorporating manifesto commitments and to report progress quarterly via the Ministry Performance Monitoring System (MPMS).
- Institutional Mechanisms: The Cabinet, on 30-12-2024, appointed a Public Investment Monitoring and Evaluation Committee consisting of 11 senior officials to expedite strategic decision-making on implementing public investment projects.

2.5. Stakeholder Ownership

While national monitoring and evaluation capacity is often narrowly understood as a function of government institutions, it should instead be viewed as a country-wide capacity. This broader perspective encompasses Voluntary Organizations for Professional Evaluation (VOPEs), Universities, Think Tanks, and Non-governmental organizations (NGOs). Importantly, both CSOs and parliamentarians require access to monitoring and evaluations to enhance their understanding of key issues and to enable meaningful participation in policy processes.³¹

As emphasized in the Busan Partnership, CSOs can and should play a central role in advocating for transparency in the allocation and expenditure of public budgets; ensuring accountability for the implementation of public policies; strengthening the demand for the use of evaluation to inform evidence-based policy making; and, in developing the capacity of qualified evaluators to produce credible and useful evaluations based on national and international evaluation standards.³²

As the responsible CSOs, PAFFREL and M12M initiated this third-party monitoring of the national development policy, in line with the Busan Declaration on “Partnership for Effective Development Cooperation,” which explicitly recognizes the role of independent monitoring in strengthening accountability and transparency.

2.6. Tools, Approach, Methodology, Strategy, Reporting and Limitations

The monitoring process of government manifesto implementation requires a systematic and multi-dimensional approach. These methods capture both quantitative data and qualitative insights, while also reflecting citizen perspectives and government’s accountability. The following tools and processes are utilized to assess progress, identify challenges, and strengthen evidence-based decision-making in governance.

2.6.1. Tools

- Desk Reviews: Analysis of cabinet decisions, budget documents, and implementation reports.
- Media Monitoring: Observation of media and other relevant sources.
- Performance Tracking Dashboards: Tracking of Key Performance Indicators (KPIs).
- Field Monitoring & Evaluations: On-site verification of project implementation and beneficiary feedback.

Potential roles of the United Nations Evaluation Group in National Evaluation Capacity Development in Marco Segone, Jim Rugh (Eds.), Evaluation and Civil Society: Stakeholders’ perspectives on National Evaluation Capacity Development, https://rbma.site/wp-content/uploads/mdocs/Evaluation%20and%20civil%20society_v9_final_web.pdf

- Stakeholder Consultations: Engagement with citizens, civil society, and media to ensure participatory monitoring.
- Periodic Progress Reports: Compilation of findings into quarterly and annual review documents.

The tools applied at each phase, along with the corresponding reporting cycle and dissemination plan, are outlined below:

Phase	Tools	Reporting Cycle	Month of Dissemination of reports
Phase-I	● Desk Review ● Media Monitoring ● Stakeholder Consultation	1. First Bi-Annual Report (covering the period from November 2024 to May 2025)	September 2025
Phase-II	● Media Monitoring ● Stakeholder Consultation ● Field Monitoring and Evaluation ● Periodic Progress Reports	2. Second Bi-Annual Report (From June-December 2025) 3. Third Bi-Annual Report (January-June 2026) 4. Fourth Bi-Annual Report (July-October 2026)	December 2025 June 2026 October 2026

2.6.2. Approach

This monitoring effort monitors and analyses how government activities and actions reflect the commitments and priorities outlined in the manifesto, rather than merely comparing the manifesto to the government's actions. This process is not to criticise/ praise the incumbent government but as a collective of active citizenry exercising the civic right to keep political representatives accountable.

PAFFREL and M12M understand that the actions promised in the manifesto are to be implemented from 2025-2029. In its initial stage, this monitoring process focuses on assessing the actions taken and the implementation of the government's manifesto during the first six months (November 2024-May 2025) of its term. The next stages will extend this by monitoring effective implementation of the manifesto promises.

The manifesto promises are to be implemented by following manner:

- Executive Presidency
- Cabinet of Ministers
- Parliament of Sri Lanka
- National Budget
- Ministries and Relevant Authorities

2.6.3. Methodology

This monitoring process focuses on both quantitative and qualitative indicators. In the Phase-I, the Input and Activity Indicators such as Executive Decisions, Parliamentary Actions, Cabinet Decisions, Budget Allocations, and Activities of relevant authorities are examined. In the Phase-II, the Output Indicators will be monitored through Ministerial Performances on projects (Initiated/In-Progress/Completed), service delivery improvements, number of beneficiaries reached and enacted legislation.

For Phase-I of the manifesto monitoring process, PAFFREL and the M12 focus exclusively on the “Relevance” criterion. This approach is intended to establish a foundational assessment of how well the manifesto promises address the real needs and priorities of citizens and align with national development objectives. Subsequent phases of monitoring will expand the assessment to include the remaining OECD-DAC criteria; efficiency and effectiveness allowing for a comprehensive monitoring of both implementation and outcomes over time. The rating methodology figured as Highly Relevant, Relevant, Partially Relevant, and Irrelevant for the Relevance criteria as referred in Practitioner’s Guideline: A Step by Step Approach on Development Evaluation in Sri Lanka³³ to assess the alignment of mainly the cabinet decisions and budget proposals against manifesto promises through the following structured approach:

³³ Sivagnanasothy, V. (2020). Development Evaluation in Sri Lanka. USAID/SDGAP.

1. Highly Relevant

- The cabinet decision or budget allocation directly addresses a manifesto promise.
- The policy promise fully corresponds to the intended goal, standard, or requirement without any gaps.

2. Relevant

- The cabinet decision or allocation broadly supports the intent of a manifesto promise, though not fully aligned in detail.
- There is a general correspondence between the policy/action and the commitment, but some adaptation or partial coverage is evident.

3. Partially Relevant

- The cabinet decision or allocation has limited connection to a manifesto promise.
- Only certain aspects of the promise are addressed, or the impact is indirect or insufficient.

4. Irrelevant

- The cabinet decision or allocation does not relate to the manifesto promise in any meaningful way.
- There is no alignment between the policy/action and the stated commitment.

This report systematically reviews the present government's progress against its election manifesto commitments, drawing on executive decisions by Presidential Secretariat, cabinet decisions by cabinet ministers, parliamentary actions, national budget allocations, ministerial performances and activities of relevant authorities, it measures what has been delivered, and what is in progress and identifies whether the Promise; Implemented, Partially Implemented, Initiated, Yet to be Implemented, and the gray areas to be verified offering an evidence base for public debate and policy improvement.

2.6.3.1. Executive Decisions

The Executive President's decisions are crucial for turning manifesto promises into action, as they set the overall direction and priorities for government. By guiding cabinet and ministries, the President ensures policies and resources are aligned with commitments. Strong leadership at this level accelerates delivery and strengthens accountability.

The executive decisions taken by the Executive President to implement the manifesto promises are observed in this monitoring process.

2.6.3.2. Cabinet Decisions

Cabinet decisions are central to implementing a Government's Manifesto, as they translate political commitments into formal policy actions. Through collective decision-making, the cabinet ensures that proposals are approved, resources are allocated and legal or administrative frameworks are established. Effective cabinet decisions provide coherence across ministries, prevent overlaps, and create accountability, making them a critical link between manifesto promises and practical governance. This biannual report is based on cabinet decisions published as official press releases on the Office of the Cabinet of Ministers, Sri Lanka website (<https://www.cabinetoffice.gov.lk/>), and does not rely on actual cabinet memorandum or cabinet papers which are not publicly available.

2.6.3.3. Parliamentary Actions

Parliamentary actions are vital in implementing a manifesto because Parliament approves laws, policies, and the national budget that give effect to government commitments. Through debates, oversight, and committee work, Parliament ensures accountability and transparency in implementation. By representing the people's voice, Parliament strengthens legitimacy and keeps the government aligned with its manifesto promises.

This monitoring process deals with parliamentary actions, specially budgetary announcements, legal announcements, committee processes, and policy decisions. During the first six months, the National Budget was enacted in the parliament in the month of April 2025 for the implementation until December 2025. The Parliamentary Committee on Public Accounts (COPA), Parliamentary Committee on Public Enterprises (COPE), and Parliamentary Committee on Public Finance (COPF) will immensely benefit by institutionalising a performance based public finance scrutiny system on state agencies to ensure performance accountability and results through use of robust outcome focussed KPI based assessment process.

2.6.3.4. National Budget Allocations

The national budget is the principal tool through which a government translates its political manifesto into actionable programs and services. Monitoring the budget is therefore essential to ensure that promised commitments are adequately funded and effectively implemented. It helps to verify whether resource allocations align with the manifesto priorities, detect gaps between policy intentions and actual expenditure, and hold institutions accountable for results. Continuous budget monitoring also strengthens transparency, improves public trust, and enables timely adjustments to address emerging challenges.

This manifesto monitoring process analyses the National Budget 2025 to assess the degree of alignment with manifesto proposals based on three criteria:

- Relevance: Budget allocations correspond to specific manifesto commitments.
- Efficiency: Adequacy of financial resources allocated for full implementation.
- Effectiveness: Presence of clear timelines and measurable targets aligned with manifesto goals.

Although, the Phase-I mainly focuses on outputs due to the timeline of the monitoring period (November 2024- May 2025). The efficiency and effectiveness to be measured in the Phase – II.

2.6.3.5. Ministerial performances and activities of Relevant Authorities

Ministries play a central role in monitoring the implementation of a government's manifesto because they are the primary agencies responsible for translating policy promises into action. Each ministry is directly accountable for sectoral commitments, ensuring that resources are allocated, activities are carried out, and progress is measured. Effective monitoring by ministries helps identify gaps, delays, and challenges in execution, while also ensuring coordination across government institutions. By providing timely reports and feedback, ministries contribute to transparency, accountability, and the overall credibility of the government's commitment to its manifesto.

In this analysis, the Phase-I monitors the proposals to the Cabinet of Ministers and physical performances from the ministries to be monitored in the Phase-II.

The ‘Clean Sri Lanka’ initiative and implementation of the Anti-Corruption Action Plan by Commission to Investigate Allegations of Bribery or Corruption (CIABOC) also included in this monitoring process.

2.6.3.6. Observation

Media, Research Institutions, and CSOs play a vital role in ensuring transparency and accountability in the implementation of government manifestos. The media informs the public by reporting on government performance, creating awareness, and stimulating public discourse. Research organizations provide independent evidence and analysis by producing policy analyses reports and, track alignment between promises and actual outcomes are in observation for the verification of the assessment.

2.6.4. Strategy

Since Sri Lanka has put in a place in the public sector the unique feature of the approach is that it seeks “Whole of Government”. PSM cycle covering Planning, Budgeting, Implementation, Monitoring (Auditing & Evaluation). This monitoring process is in line with the strategy of the Public Sector Management Cycle (PSM Cycle) to monitor the implementation of the National Budget.

2.6.5. Reporting and Feedback Mechanisms of PAFFREL and M12M

- Internal Reporting: Periodic publication of monitoring findings with stakeholder validation.
- Public Reporting: Periodic publication of monitoring findings to maintain transparency and foster citizen trust through Bi-Annual and Annual Reports of monitoring.
- Feedback Loops: Mechanisms to integrate lessons learned into policy adjustments and future planning.

2.6.6. Limitations

- The manifesto lacks a structured numbering system, which affects its scientific consistency and makes systematic monitoring more challenging.
- The absence of clearly defined timeframes for implementing the promised actions makes it difficult to assess progress and hold parties accountable.
- The report relies only on Cabinet Decisions published as official press releases which are available in the public domain.
- The analysis is limited to decisions and budget allocations within the specified timeframe and does not capture the full implementation or impact of policies.
- Due to time constraints, monitoring was limited to online news channels, which may not fully capture the diversity of perspectives and information available.
- The desk review approach relies on publicly available documents and secondary sources; it does not include primary data collection or field verification at this stage.
- Budget alignment analysis is preliminary, as detailed implementation progress and outcome data are not yet available.

Despite these limitations, the methodology provides a systematic basis for tracking government commitment and early implementation progress.

3. Structure of the Government's Manifesto

The National Peoples Power (NPP) government has formed with a vision for 'A Thriving Nation and – A Beautiful Life'³⁴. This alliance has made a clear commitment to implement its manifesto successfully in order to create a new Sri Lanka. 4. Monitoring Process – Phase I: Executive Decisions Vs Manifesto

‘A Thriving Nation-A Beautiful Life’, manifesto endorsed by citizens through the Presidential Election (September 2024) and the Parliamentary Election (November 2024). As the Executive President, he entitled the executive power to implement the manifesto promises.

During the monitoring period, it is monitored the following decisions are taken by the Executive President:

5. Monitoring Process - Phase I: Cabinet Decisions Vs Manifesto

5.1. Analysis on cabinet decisions between November 2024 to May 2025

The cabinet decisions taken by the cabinet of ministers between November 2024 and May 2025 are monitored in this monitoring process. During this time period, the cabinet made a total of 299 decisions. Of these, 65 decisions were identified as statutory requirements for mandatory approvals unrelated to the manifesto (e.g., appointments of secretaries). This left 234 decisions for further consideration.

Among the 234 decisions, 18 were excluded from alignment analysis as they either:

- Represented entirely new proposals not referenced in the manifesto, or
- Legacy proposals from previous governments requiring cabinet approval.

Thus, 216 Cabinet decisions were assessed for alignment with the manifesto's policy commitments. Each decision was classified into one of four categories; Highly Relevant, Relevant, Partially Relevant, and Irrelevant.

The findings from this alignment assessment are summarised below:

Number of Cabinet Decisions	Alignment Status	Percentage (Approx. %)
50	Highly Relevant	23%
58	Relevant	27%
93	Partially Relevant	43%
15	Irrelevant	7%

Table 2 Summary of alignment assessment

5.2. Findings on relevance of alignment with cabinet decisions

The alignment analysis of Cabinet decisions from November 2024 to May 2025 demonstrates a generally positive correlation between government action and the commitments outlined in the manifesto. Of the 216 decisions analysed:

- 23% were Highly Relevant, indicating that these actions precisely implement the specific promises made in the manifesto, both in intent and content.
- 27% were Relevant, showing substantial support for manifesto themes, though not always with exact correspondence.
- 43% were Partially Relevant, suggesting that while many initiatives relate to manifesto goals, they often address only a portion of the intended scope or do so nominally.
- 7% were Irrelevant, revealing a small proportion of decisions with little to no clear link to the stated policy priorities.

This analysis underscores the importance of continued monitoring to ensure that policy implementation remains focused, transparent, and aligned with public commitments (Annex-I).

5.3. Findings on cabinet decisions concerning National Key Results Areas

The distribution of cabinet decisions indicates a strong emphasis on economic modernization, with 42% of actions aligned to A Modern Life - A Wealthy Nation, the NKRA with the most sub-areas. This suggests a policy focus on infrastructure, economic growth, and modernization.

On the other hand, social well-being and safety, represented by A Fulfilling Life – A Comfortable Country (10%) and An Honourable Life – A Safer Country (17%), received comparatively lower prioritization. This may reflect a strategic progression building wealth as a foundation before expanding social programs.

The 30% alignment with A Dignified Life – A Strong Country shows a moderate focus on national resilience and governance. Meanwhile, 1% of decisions address cross-sectional goals, indicating some integrative planning across multiple sectors.

The cabinet's decision making reflects a strong emphasis toward economic recovery and international engagement, while this indicates responsiveness to macroeconomic and geopolitical pressures, social and Community-focused NKRA are comparatively underrepresented, highlighting the need for a more balanced and inclusive policy agenda that aligns with the comprehensive development goals of the government.

Economic Sector: Procurement (14), Monetary (01), Trade (09), Energy (08), Transport (07), Tax (07), Industry (07), Economy (06), Tourism (05), Land (04), Debt Restructuring (04), Agriculture (04), Digital Economy (03), Entrepreneurship (07), Livestock (02), Research and Development (05), and Marine (02).

The Economy sector commands the largest share of cabinet decisions, nearly half of the total analysed. It reflects the government's strong focus on economic stability, infrastructure, trade facilitation, energy security, and digital transformation. However, some critical areas like monetary policy, land, agriculture, and debt management remain less emphasized, potentially requiring stronger policy depth and integration.

Governance Sector: Foreign Affairs (26), Law and Judicial (12), Public Service (10), Anti-Corruption (08), Democracy (02), and National Security (01).

Governance emerges as a secondary priority, with a strong focus on international relations and institutional reform. Foreign Affairs dominates this sector, possibly due to ongoing geopolitical, trade, and aid negotiations. Legal and administrative reform, along with anti-corruption efforts, signals a commitment to strengthening the rule of law and public accountability.

Community Sector: Environment (10), Housing (02), Art and Culture (04), Media (03), Sports (03), Health (05), and Education (05).

Community well-being is modestly prioritized. The Environment leads within this cluster, indicating recognition of sustainability concerns. However, sectors crucial for long-term social cohesion health, education, housing, and cultural development remain relatively low in decision frequency, calling for increased investment in human capital and community resilience.

Social Sector: Social Protection (12), Food Security (07), Labour and Employment (06), Women and Children (02).

The social sector receives limited but strategic attention, especially in response to current economic hardships and social vulnerabilities. While social protection and food security receive fair attention, gender issues and employment reforms appear underrepresented, suggesting the need for a more inclusive and equitable approach to social development.

Cross-sectoral policies and integrative development strategies receive minimal direct focus, indicating a potential gap in holistic, multi-sectoral planning and implementation.

Based on the alignment of cabinet decisions of government activities with the manifesto, an analysis of the government's performance during the first six months reveals that 239 proposed activities out of 1,333 have been initiated.

This leaves proposed activities yet to be acted upon. Moreover, even among the activities that have been initiated, it is essential to ensure they translate into a tangible impact on the ground in the future.

6. Monitoring Process - Phase I: Parliamentary Actions Vs Manifesto

This monitoring process examines parliamentary actions, with particular attention to budgetary announcements, legal enactments, committee proceedings, and major policy decisions. However, legal enactments were monitored within the first six months and the actions and observations as follows:

7. Monitoring Process-Phase I: Budget Vs Manifesto

7.1. Analysis on National Budget 2025

The national budget serves as a key official document through which the government's manifesto commitments can be evaluated. This analysis assesses the extent of relevance between the manifesto proposals and budget allocations. The responsibility for harmonizing cabinet decisions with the national budget lies primarily with the government. Although, the manifesto does not explicitly promote budgetary support, public and political discourse continues to focus on such support should be provided.

Around 390 allocations of the National Budget 2025 of the ministries, namely, Defence, Finance, Planning and Economic Development, Digital Economy, Education, Higher Education and Vocational Education, Health and Mass Media, Foreign Affairs, Foreign Employment and Tourism, Justice and National Integration, Public Security and Parliamentary Affairs, Women and Child Affairs, Industry and Entrepreneurship Development, Fisheries, Aquatic and Ocean Resources, Plantation and Community Infrastructure, Labour, Buddhasasana, Religious and Cultural Affairs, Trade, Commerce, Food Security and Co-operative Development, Transport, Highways, Ports and Civil Aviation, Agriculture, Livestock, Land and Irrigation, Youth Affairs and Sports, Public Administration, Provincial Councils and Local Government, Urban Development, Construction and Housing, Rural Development, Social Security and Community Empowerment, Energy, Environment, and Science and Technology were examined.

This monitoring process analyses the first six months period of the government's actions and the budget allocations which are enacted by its fifth month (April 2025). Therefore, the budget analysis was limited to the last month (May 2025) of the reporting period. The National Budget 2025 was assessed with a focus on how allocations to individual ministries were directed towards the implementation of their respective programs and projects, thereby providing an indication of the government's prioritization of policy commitments. In particular, the budget allocations of 24 ministries were reviewed to understand how resources were aligned with policy commitments and government priorities.

7.2. Findings on relevance of alignment with budget proposals

- Out of 216 cabinet decisions taken between November 2024 and May 2025, only 25 demonstrate that the actions responded to the manifesto corresponded to budget proposals (Annex-II).
- Although, 191 cabinet decisions out of 216 are aligned with the manifesto, they lack corresponding budget allocations.
- 133 such budget allocations were identified in the National Budget 2025 which aligned with manifesto promises, but no related cabinet decision was made during the review period (Annex-III).
- 112 projects continued from the national budget of the previous governments, no direct connection to the current manifesto.

Cross-cutting analysis between the manifesto and the national budget provides insights into how well the stated political intentions are reflected in financial planning. Since this analysis is conducted at the initial stage, the assessment primarily focuses on the Output Level of results.

8. Monitoring Process – Phase I: Observations

While monitoring manifesto activities against government actions, the process has revealed several shortcomings and technical inconsistencies within both the manifesto and cabinet submissions. In some cases, there are overlaps where similar commitments appear under multiple headings without clear distinctions. Certain promises lack measurable targets or timelines, making it difficult to assess progress. Gaps are also evident where specific manifesto pledges are not adequately reflected in cabinet submissions.

An increasing emphasis on manifesto monitoring has been observed across both media and research institutions. This report draws on a wide range of sources including the official websites of Parliament and the Presidential Media Division, print and electronic media, social media platforms, podcasts, and research publications to track government actions against the stated promises of the Government's Manifesto. The analysis covers measures undertaken by the Executive President, Cabinet of Ministers, Parliament, Ministries, the National Budget, and the Presidential Secretariat. Complementing these efforts, PAFFREL and M12M continuously monitor media reports and other verified sources to ensure accountability and transparency in governance.

9. Summary and way forward

This Bi-Annual Report underscores a mixed pattern of harmonization between the government's manifesto and government's actions through executive decisions, cabinet decisions, parliamentary actions, and National Budget 2025. While a segment of government actions demonstrate clear and direct alignment, a substantial portion reflects only partial or no alignment against its manifesto.

There are some technical errors such as inconsistencies in wording and information were observed, along with ambiguities in implementation where activities are mentioned without clarity as follows:

- In the preamble of the manifesto analysed under the education sector, the subject status of G.C.E O/L and G.C.E A/L. In the activities it's mentioned that J.S.E, S.S.E (Lower) and S.S.E (Higher). But in the activities, School education has been divided into three categories such as Junior Secondary Education (JSE) from 6th to 9th year, Senior Secondary (Lower) Education (SSE) from Year 10 to Year 11, and Senior Secondary (Higher) Education from Years 12 to 13 (P, 11). Since educational reforms are in progress, it needs to be verified that there is any intention to transform G.C.E O/L and A/ L to J.S.E and S.S.E as mentioned in the manifesto.
- 'Praja Shakthi' Poverty alleviation programme for low-income earners as mentioned in the manifesto (P, 39). The cabinet approval granted to implement the 'Praja Shakthi' as an integrated program with a multiple approach, enabling to achieve the vision 'A Prosperous Country - A Secured Life' in line with the manifesto of the new government. It needs to be verified that is there any special vision as mentioned above in the cabinet decision apart from the manifesto "A Thriving Nation-Beautiful Life".

While considering kind of complications, this reports intend to summarise the following through its analysis:

- Total 1333 Manifesto Promises Identified in the NPP Manifesto for the period of 2024-2029.
- 239 Manifesto Promises initiated through the 216 Cabinet Decisions taken during first six months of the government. This analysis to indicate the trend of the manifesto implementation of the government.
- 09 Manifesto promises initiated through the Executive President during first six months of the NPP government.
- 08 Manifesto promises initiated through the Parliamentary Actions by enacting / amending laws during first six months and beyond this reporting period of the government.
- 25 Manifesto Promises initiated through the Cabinet Decisions and National Budget 2025 during first six months of the government.
- 133 Manifesto Promises initiated through the National Budget in the National Budget - 2025.

There are a few cabinet decisions such as granting approval for regulations pertaining to the phased out removal of the temporary suspension imposed for importation of motor vehicles under the provisions of the Imports and Exports (Control) Act, No.1 of 1969, such as lifting the temporary suspension for importation of motor vehicles is a timely decision apart from the promises of the manifesto.

It is not mentioned in the manifesto that the balance amount of foreign travel allowance to the Executive President, Ministers, and Members of Parliament is refunded. Although the Executive President and a few ministers voluntarily refunded travel allowances in recent times. While appreciating this, a formal government policy on this matter has yet to be announced.

The government removed personal security officers for all 225 Members of Parliament and Rs. 4 million has been allocated in the National Budget 2025 under the Ministry of Energy for security lamps at MPs' private residences. This is a questionable action that allocates a budget for security lamps for the private residences of MPs.

There are notable collective decisions approved by the Cabinet of Ministers (dated 07-04-2025) as collective cabinet decisions. Beyond the manifesto promise to appoint a Ministerial Committee to examine the recent decision taken by the United Kingdom to impose sanctions on 04 Sri Lankans and on humanitarian assistance to Myanmar (Dated April 1, 2025) taking into consideration the long-standing close relationship between the people of the two countries as two Buddhist States. A significant milestone is the Cabinet's formal approval (dated March 03, 2025) of the Government's Manifesto as the official National Development Plan reflecting strong political ownership and intent. Another important step is the Cabinet's decision (dated December 30, 2024) to appoint an Officials' Committee tasked with expediting implementation and resolving project management bottlenecks.

It's also monitored that the following cabinet decisions directly support and motivate the efficient implementation of manifesto:

The government anticipates achieving an economic growth rate over 5% of the real Gross Domestic Production (GDP) over the medium term. The cabinet approved the establishment of the Cabinet Appointed Special Committee on Economic Management to oversee and facilitate policy discussions on economic development, ensuring efficiency and alignment with national economic objectives (dated April 21, 2025).

To hold the National Productivity Awards Competition under the main categories of Schools, Government, Manufacturing and Services from the year 2025/26 as a strategic tool to achieve the objectives of the present government's Clean Sri Lanka National Project (dated 19-02-2025).

In addition to the above observations, this Bi-Annual report highlights the following actions by the government as a Flagship Program example of manifesto implementation in action as per the cabinet decisions taken.

- The Clean Sri Lanka Initiative is a strategic operationalisation of multiple manifesto themes, especially under the overarching vision of building a society that is socially conscious, environmentally responsible, and ethically grounded.³⁸
- A new National Anti-Corruption Action Plan (2025-2029) has been prepared with the participation of local and international stakeholders with the Approval of the Cabinet of Ministers has been granted on March 03, 2025.³⁹

Moving forward, a robust monitoring and evaluation mechanism is essential. This should include:

- Ministry-led Action Plans
- Clearly defined Key Performance Indicators (KPIs)
- Regular Progress Reviews

Such tools will enable the government to measure the real impact of its manifesto commitments on national development and adjust policy or resource allocations where necessary. Deeper evaluations of outcomes and impacts will depend on the actual implementation and progress of budgeted activities.

PAFFREL and M12M are committed to monitoring the manifesto released by the NPP prior to the Presidential and Parliamentary Elections 2024 and holding the government accountable for its implementation in the governance of the country. It is equally important to acknowledge that citizens place significant value on verbal promises and assurances made on political platforms, reinforcing the need for transparency and delivery.

PAFFREL and M12M continue to advocate for the protection of advance/early voting mechanisms for Sri Lankan citizens living abroad and is concerned that the government's manifesto promised as safeguarding the voting rights of immigrants within and outside of the country (P, 109). PAFFREL and stakeholders await for the government updates on the implementation of this promise. Through this independent monitoring initiative, PAFFREL and M12M reaffirms its commitment to advancing transparency, participatory governance, and democratic accountability in Sri Lanka. This report not only serves as a baseline but also sets the stage for a more comprehensive outcomes in the next phase.

10. Recommendations

Effective monitoring of election manifesto promises is essential to strengthening democratic accountability and ensuring that political commitments are meaningfully translated into governance and development outcomes. Based on the findings of the first phase of manifesto monitoring, PAFFREL and the M12 present the following set of recommendations aimed at enhancing transparency, institutionalizing systematic approaches to manifesto formulation and implementation, and improving access to accurate and timely information. These recommendations are directed at fostering greater accountability, inclusivity, and credibility in the country's governance processes.

1. Formulation of practical and realistic election manifestos to ensure accountability

Prior to the Presidential Election 2024, PAFFREL together with the March 12 Movement developed and submitted a framework for systematic manifesto formulation to major political parties, including the National People's Power. However, the monitoring process has shown that this framework was not adequately reflected in the current manifesto. The framework stresses the importance of ensuring a clear structure, broad-based public consultation that includes marginalized groups and future generations, defined implementation plans with timelines, resources and M&E components, and alignment with national policies as well as international and regional commitments. PAFFREL and M12M therefore reiterate the need for this framework to be fully incorporated into future manifesto development processes to strengthen accountability and credibility.

2. Integrating Manifesto Promises into Governance Processes

Monitoring has shown that government manifesto promises are occasionally mentioned in activities initiated through cabinet or executive decisions, but this is not observed as a consistent practice. To strengthen accountability and ensure systematic implementation, PAFFREL and the M12M recommend that manifesto promises be regularly integrated into all arms of government decision-making, including cabinet decisions, executive actions, and the national budget, thereby guaranteeing their consideration and effective execution.

3. Ensuring public access to cabinet decisions

Cabinet decisions are a critical instrument for the implementation of manifesto promises. At present, access to such information is largely limited to media releases issued by the Office of the Cabinet of Ministers, which do not provide sufficient detail for systematic monitoring. To ensure transparency, accountability, and effective assessment of manifesto implementation, PAFFREL and the M12M recommend the establishment of an open data mechanism through which detailed cabinet decisions are made publicly available.

4. Availability of accurate, complete, and updated data

Accurate, complete, and regularly updated data is essential for assessing the implementation of manifesto promises. While budget allocations to ministries by sector play a direct role in translating commitments into action, the existing reporting mechanisms are limited to internal government monitoring through quarterly performance reviews. At present, there is no formal system that allows civil society organisations (CSOs) or research institutions to access such data for independent monitoring. PAFFREL and the M12M therefore recommend the establishment of a mechanism to provide timely access to action plans, strategic plans, and progress of performance data, enabling independent third-party monitoring and promoting greater transparency and accountability in the implementation of manifesto commitments.

5. Establishment of National Monitoring and Evaluation Information System (Repository)

PAFFREL and the M12M recommend the establishment of a national M&E information system to serve as a central repository of findings and recommendations generated by both internal government mechanisms and independent monitors. Such a system would facilitate lesson learning, improve evidence-based policymaking, and enhance transparency and accountability in the implementation of government programmes and manifesto commitments.
